(XLVIIIth YEAR.) THE (No. 2390.)

MARYLAND GAZETTE.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1792.

STOCKHOLM, August 3.

IT has been notified by a circular letter to all the provinces, that whoever has to preſent a petition to the king, ſhall not kneel down, as this ſubjection belongs only to the Supreme Being, and when obſerved towards men, is unworthy the dignity of a free nation, and of man nature.

SPIRE, Auguſt 11.

The Auſtrians began to bombard Landau on the 8th inſt. about four o'clock in the morning. The marſhal Bouille has joined the Imperial army.

MANHEIM, Auguſt 4.

Laſt night, about eight o'clock, a detachment of Auſtrian horſe attacked the French cavalry near Eſſingen and drove them back with great loſs under the cannon of Landau.

The ſkirmiſhes between the two armies are frequent, and from the ſuperior diſcipline of the Imperial and Pruſſian troops, victory generally crown their arms.

Pruſſian Head-Quarters at Contz, in the environs of Treves, Auguſt 6.

Yeſterday, the 5th inſt. the army entered the camp. The van-guard, under the command of the prince of Hohenloe, has encamped between Gravenmach and Newen.

The king's quarters are in the monaſtery of the Carthuſians, and thoſe of the duke of Brunſwick at Contz. Hoſtilities are immediately to be commenced, but at preſent both parties are nearly inactive.

The French patriots at Landau have ſent an addreſs to all the Jacobin clubs in France, in which they declare their reſolution to periſh in the ruins of the fortreſs rather than to ſurrender.

The garriſon conſiſts now of 10,000 men.

VALENCIENNES, Auguſt 17.

The commiſſioners applaud general Dillon's frankneſs very much; and if that officer's order given out the 14th inſtant, could have cauſed a momentary bad impreſſion, in like manner if M. Dumourier's refuſal to publiſh it could have been diſapproved—the two following letters will juſtify both the generals, and prove them worthy of the confidence of their ſoldiers and the nation.

General Dumourier's anſwer to general Dillon's of the 14th of Auguſt.

"I am very much concerned, my dear general, that you ſhould have given ſuch an imprudent order—I ſhould be very ſorry to cauſe it to be executed in the camp of Maulde; you ſhould have waited for official accounts, or the arrival of the commiſſioners, and have all not to have iſſued a declaration which is a crime againſt the ſovereignty of the nation. I have not leiſure to explain the reaſons to you; but I hope that on more mature deliberation you will thank me for my diſobedience, and that you will do away, yourſelf, the bad impreſſion which your ill-timed order may have cauſed in your army—I tell you the truth as to a friend.

(Signed) "DUMOURIER."

General Dillon to the Commiſſioners of the National Aſſembly.

"Gentlemen,

"As I was going my rounds, I received your letter from Valenciennes; on my return, I eagerly take up my pen to anſwer it. I ſhould inſtantly repair to Valenciennes, if I could quit my poſt in the hour of danger. I had juſt diſpatched a courier to M. Dumourier, at Maulde, to give him notice, that the enemy were in motion towards their ſide, when I received a letter from him, informing me of the ſame movements on his quarter.—M. de la Noue expects to be attacked to-morrow.

"It is very evident that the enemy mean to ſtrike a great blow. We are on our guard on all ſides, and well diſpoſed to die for the ſtate. At break of day I will ſend out ſcouts to watch the enemy's motions as far as the frontiers; if, in the morning, I ſee no appearance of an attack on this camp, or that of Maulde, I ſhall be at Valenciennes about four o'clock. If they march I ſhall let you know, and requeſt you to come here, where you ſhall be ſafe and comfortable in a caſtle; removed from all danger. I long to know the motives of your miſſion. Deeply affected at what I heard imperfectly, my courage can never fail, when there is a queſtion of defending the ſtate.

(Signed) "ARTHUR DILLON."

STRASBURG, Auguſt 20.

A Pruſſian army, ſupported by a body of 6000 Auſtrians is marching towards Thionville—another, reinforced by 12,000 French emigrants is proceeding towards Bar-le-Duc.

Both columns conſiſt of about 50,000 men.—It ſeems to be their plan to divide themſelves into two bodies, one third of which is to beſiege the two above mentioned places, while the main army attempts to enter France. They are confident that thouſands of French male-contents will flock to their ſtandard.

Beſides the 50,000, a corps de reſerve of 12,000 men for each column, at about ſeven leagues from the main army. Another body of French emigrants, ſupported by 4000 Auſtrians, is advancing towards the duchy of Deux Ponts. The troops of the palatinate have orders to follow the ſame plan, but in different directions.

PARIS, Auguſt 23.

"You will find by a letter from M. Servan, that in the night between the 19th and 20th, M. la Fayette went over to the enemy. The manner is differently related. It is ſaid that he was made priſoner while reconnoitring—by others, that he is gone to Holland, in order to paſs over into England; but with more probability of truth, that under the pretence of opening the gates of Sedan to the commiſſioners of the national aſſembly, he and ſeventeen of his ſtaff majors, among whom were M. Alexander Lameth, M. Beauharnois, and M. Gouvion, the brother of the general that fell ſo gloriouſly, took the opportunity of throwing themſelves into the hands of one of the advanced poſts of the enemy; and by which they were made priſoners of war. There certainly was no other way by which he could ſave his life againſt the decree of the aſſembly, which inſtigated every one to hunt him down.

"We have this day accounts that the commiſſioners have ſuſpended M. Luckner. This feeble old man, whoſe Germanic thirſt of money would make him yield to every poſſible condition, however forcid, the commiſſioners, upon inquiry, did not chooſe to entruſt with the fate of France.

"You will ſee that M. Montmorin was taken at the houſe of a waſher-woman in the Fauxbourg St. Antoine. His examination at the bar of the aſſembly was very intereſting. His dexterity in repelling the members was admirable. He ſaid, the letters found in the Thuilleries were not addreſſed to him. He had no apartments in the palace. There was another Montmorin, governor of Fontainbleau, and to him poſſibly theſe letters might be directed. On ſearching him ſeveral doſes of opium were found in his pockets; but ſo perfect was his addreſs, that it is thought they will not find ground for accuſation in his conduct."

The ſuſpenſion of M. Luckner and M. Dillon, has followed the flight of M. de la Fayette. The marſhal has of late begun to think his power ſomewhat independent of the legiſlative body, and M. Dillon's firſt letter, after the 10th inſtant, certainly indicated an intention to ſupport the king againſt the national aſſembly, if any ſtruggle could be maintained between them. M. Kellerman has the command of M. Luckner's army.

The three commiſſioners lately impriſoned at Sedan, are now releaſed.

NORTHERN ARMY.

MAUBEUGE, Auguſt 21.

Colonel Dampierre, at the head of a detachment of three hundred men, marched againſt a party of Imperialiſts, poſted at the bridge of Salte, though it rained ſo violently the whole night, that above 100 ſoldiers loſt their ſhoes in the heavy roads; the detachment marched three leagues in three hours, and appeared in the preſence of the enemy at break of day. Were it not for the impetuous ardour of 30 dragoons, that were poſted to cut off the enemy's retreat, the French infantry would have been ſurrounded and taken. The imperial huſſars owed their lives to the ſwiftneſs of their horſes. The colonel fearing that his wet and weary troops ſhould catch cold ſtanding ſtill, returned to camp by the right bank of the river Sambre, after having deſtroyed a great part of the bridge.

CENTRAL ARMY, (Late La Fayette's).

SIERK, Auguſt 21.

The Imperialiſts and Pruſſians begin to inſeſt our frontiers and commit every kind of depredation. Several French detachments attack and repel them. They ſeem at once to threaten Thionville, Moyenwie and Longwy. Our army is becoming more formidable every day; reinforcements are pouring in upon us without interruption; patriotiſm cannot ſwell higher in every breaſt.

Head-Quarters of the ARMY on the RHINE,
Auguſt 18.

There is nothing new here. Our patrols have been reinforced and multiplied all along the Rhine. Every military aid has been recurred to in order to protect us from being taken in the rear or in the flank. Redoubts and intrenchments abound here. We are well ſituated. The defiles of Porentruy, of Biche and Pirmaſens, are well provided with cannon, and can be defended againſt a whole army. There is not a day but a new battalion arrives to us—to be ſure they are recruits; but the cauſe is good; they will ſoon be veterans.

LONDON, Auguſt 27.

Four ſhips of the line have been put into commiſſion by the lords of the admiralty, during their preſent tour, and ordered to be manned, as ſpeedily as poſſible. Such a poſition of cutters is alſo directed as uſually precedes an impreſs. A rumour has thus abſurdly ariſen, that the power of Great-Britain is to be directed againſt the liberty of France!!

Sincerely we believe that no ſuch meaſure is intended, and we notice the report only for the purpoſe of giving it as much contradiction as can reſult from the moſt obvious principles of juſtice and policy.

The duke of Brunſwick's army is compoſed of the flower of the Pruſſian troops.

All deſerters, and eſpecially all the French in the ſeveral regiments, were left behind in Pruſſia; ſo that great confidence is placed in the fidelity of the men. It is certain that mutual contempt and hatred prevail between the Pruſſian troops and the ſeveral corps of emigrants. The latter are undiſciplined and diſorderly. On a diſtribution of bread to the troops, they wanted to take the management of the whole; and all the prudence and authority of the chiefs on both ſides were neceſſary to prevent the Pruſſian ſoldiers and the French nobles from coming to blows.

The following are the preciſe words of a Pruſſian general, in a letter to a friend at Bruſſels—"We have 15,000 emigrants in our army, who have 20,000 horſes for uſe, and as much baggage as would be ſufficient for an army of 50,000 men. They have every thing that they ought not have, and nothing of what they ought, for making war."

Other letters aſſure that it is ſtill in contemplation to remove them entirely from the combined armies.

Aug. 28. Lord Gower having ſettled the affairs which detained him in France, will be in town to-morrow night, if no unforeſeen accident prevents him.

Yeſterday arrived a mail from Lisbon, brought by the Expedition packet in 16 days, in which the rev. Dr. Willis, captain Willis, and ſeveral others, came paſſengers.

All the cuſtom-houſe cutters at Portſmouth were yeſterday put under the command of admiral lord Hood, and ſeveral other diſpoſitions made, which are never accepted but for the purpoſes of a general impreſs of ſeamen.

Whether theſe ſteps indicate an intention in our court to take an active part in the continental diſputes, or whether they are merely precautionary meaſures to enable us to act as circumſtances and ſound policy may afterwards dictate, a little time will probably determine.

It is confeſſed in Paris, that the advanced guard of the main army at Fontenoy has ſuſtained an attack by the Auſtrians, in which 400 men fell on the ſide of the French, though the enemy was repulſed.

The duke of Brunſwick was at Luxembourg for a few hours on the 14th of this month. On the 15th came the king of Pruſſia on horſeback, whom the governor received at the entrance of the town, and accompanied with great form to all the remarkable parts of the fortreſs. After taking ſome refreſhment, he returned on the ſame day to the camp at Montfort.

Extract of a letter, brought by the Dutch mail yeſterday.

"The general M. de la Fayette, and 19 officers of rank, who were making the beſt of their way to Holland, were ſtopped near Liege, and taken priſoners by the Liegeois legion; the general claimed the right of nations, being on neutral ground, but he was given to underſtand that he muſt ſubmit to the right of arms, and he was made priſoner with all his followers."

Copy of a letter from M. la Fayette, to the municipality of Sedan, dated Auguſt 18.

"Commiſſioners of the national aſſembly are to arrive, to preach an unconſtitutional doctrine to the army. It is evident to every unprejudiced man, that on the 10th of Auguſt, the epoch of the king's ſuſpenſion, the national aſſembly had been violated, and the members who have accepted of ſuch a miſſion, can be only the chiefs or the inſtruments of the faction that have thus enſlaved the national aſſembly and the king.

"In the terms of the law relative to the ſtate of war, and on my ſole and perſonal reſponſibility, I call upon the municipality of Sedan to detain the perſons calling themſelves commiſſioners from the national aſſembly, and to put them in ſafe cuſtody, under the guard of a ſuperior officer, who, equally on my ſole and perſonal reſponſibility, ſhall execute this order, which he cannot refuſe to do, without being immediately brought to anſwer before a council of war.

"I muſt alſo call upon the conſtituted authorities of departments, by virtue of the ſame laws, to approve of theſe meaſures, and I ſhall make the ſame requiſition to the tribunal of the diſtrict of Sedan, and to the different departments in which are ſtationed the troops committed to me.

"This letter, depoſited at the municipality, will ſerve as a voucher to ſhew that neither the community of Sedan, nor the national guard, whom the law puts under my command, nor the troops of the army volunteers, and troops of the line, and particularly M. Sicard, colonel of the 43d regiment, whom I appoint to this miſſion, nor the adminiſtrative and judicial bodies who may concur in arreſting the commiſſioners, are ſubject to any reſponſibility, and that it is I, who, faithful to my oaths, to the principles of the declaration of rights, to the conſtitution, which the ſovereign will of the nation has decreed—that it is I alone who call for, as I have a right to do, all the meaſures that may give undeniable proofs of reſiſtance of oppreſſion, the firſt duty of free minds.

(Signed) "LA FAYETTE."

Copy of a letter from M. La Fayette to the municipal officers at Sedan, dated Bouillon, Auguſt 19.

"If the laſt drop of my blood could ſerve the community of Sedan, it has a right to the ſacrifice, and this would coſt me leſs than that which I now make, but at the moment when I foreſee, by reaſons that will not eſcape you, that my preſence with you would tend only in a few days to bring you into danger, I ought to ſpare the city of Sedan the miſfortunes of which I ſhould be the cauſe, and I think the beſt means of ſerving it is by removing from it a man whom all the enemies of liberty have proſcribed, who will never bow to any deſpotiſm, and who, penetrated with grief at being no longer able at preſent to be uſeful to his country, feels conſolation only in the vows he puts up, that the ſacred cauſe of liberty and equality, whoſe holy name is profaned, if that be poſſible, by the crimes of a faction, may not at leaſt be held long in ſubjection, and in the oath which he renews before a community truly patriotic, to be faithful to the principles that have animated his whole life.

(Signed) "LA FAYETTE."

ALBANY, October 18, 1792.

Yeſterday was brought to town and lodged in gaol, Jacob Valentine, the perſon charged with the murder of an Indian chief, ſome time ſince, at the Oſwego-falls—and for whoſe apprehenſion the ſupreme executive of this ſtate had, by proclamation, offered a reward of 500 dollars. He denies his having murdered the Indian, but ſays he killed him in his own defence—and that, at the time he was apprehended, he was on his way to deliver himſelf up for trial. He was taken in the ſtate of Vermont, by Mr. Jonathan Ruſſel, of Herkemer county, whither he had purſued him from Upper to Lower Canada, and acroſs the Lakes. Mr. Ruſſel, when in Upper Canada, applied to governor Simcoe for permiſſion to apprehend the ſaid Valentine, if in that province, which was readily granted.

LEXINGTON, (Kentucky) September 13.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman at Fort Waſhington, dated September 7.

"I arrived here laſt evening, and this inſtant general Wilkinſon arrived; he has been to the battle-ground and found two pieces of cannon that were loſt on the unfortunate fourth of November laſt. Laſt night a party of Indians came to Fort Hamilton and took off about ſixty horſes of the contractors; captain Barbee with ſixty men is in purſuit of them, and I make no doubt will overtake them."

Extract of a letter from a citizen of Cincinnati, September 9th, 1792.

"The day before yeſterday general Wilkinſon returned to this place, from a viſit to the out-poſts, and an extenſive excurſion to general St. Clair's field of ſlaughter, and around the head-waters of the Big Miami—I am informed that he has diſcovered two pieces of the braſs ordnance loſt on the 4th of November—that he explored the country in front of the field of battle, within eight miles of the old Miami village, which turns out to be ſixty miles from the field. He has alſo explored the country to the eaſt of general St. Clair's trace—from whence it appeared that the governor bore much too far to the weſtward. We are told, the general paſſed through ſeveral extenſive encampments, occupied by the ſavages about the month of May, on the head-waters of the Miami, but that he was not able to diſcover any party of theſe murderers; indeed it is probable that was not his object, as he does, I am informed, ſtill conſider himſelf reſtrained from offenſive operations."

Robert Peter, colonel William Deakins, Benjamin Stoddert, Thomas Beall of George, John Threlkeld, and Samuel Davidson, Esquires, George-Town. George Walker, Esquire, city of Washington. Wallace and Muir, and John Davidson, Esquires, Annapolis.

This scheme contains several very valuable lots of land contiguous to the city of Washington, whose increase in value will keep pace with the growth of the rising empire of the United States of America—Hence, therefore, without any further definition, it will be evident that for the small sum of one Guinea a valuable and beautiful country seat may be obtained in the vicinity of the capital of America; or a lot in a town now possessing an extensive commerce.

The subscriber proposes drawing this Lottery in George-Town, on the first Monday in May next, or sooner, if the tickets are all sold, which he flatters himself will be the case from his present prospects. Deeds, with a general warranty, will immediately be given for the lots of land, and the money for the cash prizes will be paid on demand. Notice will be given of the drawing in the public papers, and a list of the fortunate numbers will be immediately published. The crop now on the lots is reserved to the subscriber. A plot of the lots may be seen at Mr. George Mann's.

☞ TICKETS may be had of Messrs. Wallace and Muir, John Davidson, Esquires, and Mr. George Mann.

JOHN THOMAS BOUCHER.

Notice.

AS the subscriber cannot possibly know the fate of a number of his LOTTERY TICKETS now in Europe, for sale, before the last of September, he is under the necessity of extending the time of drawing his lottery to some time in November next.

Eight Dollars Reward.

RAN away from the subscriber, on the 12th inst. a negro man named WILL, about 23 years of age, five feet nine or ten inches high; had on, when he went away, a round felt hat, osnabrig shirt and trousers, and a coarse cloth over jacket, short and round, he had other cloaths with him, which cannot well be described, he is likely, of a very dark complexion, full faced, and has a remarkable fine set of teeth, he is slow of speech, and rather awkward in his manners, is a tolerable good blacksmith, but has never worked as foreman of a shop; he was formerly the property of Henry May, late of this county, blacksmith. This fellow was taken out of gaol at Alexandria, in Virginia, about eight days ago, but has since made his escape; when he was apprehended he had a forged pass in his possession, and it is expected he may have procured another. Whoever takes up the said negro and brings him to me, or secures him in any gaol so that I get him again, shall receive the above reward.

18 RICHARD BEARD.

N. B. It is probable this fellow may endeavour to pass for a free man, as there are many free blacks passing about the country; when he went to Alexandria his intention was to have made his escape by water, I therefore forewarn all masters of vessels, and others, from harbouring or concealing him at their peril, if they should they may expect to be dealt with agreeably to law.
